

ULTIMATUM GIVEN TURKS ON STRAITS BY LORD CURZON

Must Agree by To-Morrow
or Dardanelles Conference Will End.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 19 (United Press).—Foreign Minister Curzon of Great Britain, today announced that unless the Turks accept the Allied project for freedom of the Dardanelles by to-morrow, the Near East Peace Conference will be terminated.

Later it was explained Curzon meant that the conference regarding settlements of the straits would be terminated to-morrow, unless Turkey accepted the Allied proposal. However, it was stated, the conference would continue to discuss other phases of the Near East settlement.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 19 (Associated Press).—It was reported this afternoon that a complete draft of the peace treaty drawn up as a result of the deliberations of the Near East Conference here would be presented to the Turks on Saturday.

To-day's session of the conference body dealing with the question of the Straits was adjourned at 2 P. M. until to-morrow, without an agreement having been reached.

The Turkish delegates were conciliatory during the discussions, but the Russian representatives maintained an attitude of opposition.

FOUR BARN BURNED NEAR PHILADELPHIA

Total of 36 Destroyed Since October
—Police Looking for Incendiaries.
PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—Four barns were destroyed by fire early today in Montgomery and Chester Counties. The fires were within a radius of twenty miles. In at least two instances there was evidence of incendiaries. At one place shots were exchanged with three men seen.

State policemen in large force are combing the roads in search of the "barn burners." The fires today brought the total number burned in Montgomery, Chester and Delaware Counties to thirty-six since early October. The monetary loss now totals about $400,000.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND AFLOAT IN EAST RIVER

Steamship Captain Sights Corpses and Takes It From Water.

The body of a woman, not yet identified, was found floating in the East River, off the foot of South Street, Williamsburg, at 5 o'clock this morning. Capt. Jean Poole of the steamship Porto Rico was first to see it and he directed the work of getting it out. The body was taken to the Brooklyn Morgue.

The woman was about thirty-five years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 140 pounds, had dark hair and eyes and was a blue suit and brown coat.

MAN, 106, AND WIFE, 96, SEPARATED BY DEATH, POORHOUSE IN VIEW

"I was flood of tears course down her cheeks. 'I protested at the Overseer of the Poor separating us after all these years and now the hand of death has separated us. It's the hand of God.'"

Joseph Verento, 106 years old, and his wife had been supported for the last three years by the Town of Brookhaven, Overseer of the Poor. Alanson still seeing to it that they had enough food and fuel to sustain them. But the shortage of coal brought a crisis in their lives. Yesterday it was decided because of this shortage to remove the man to the poorhouse, where he would be sure of food and warmth.

Mr. Still went to their home and apprised them of the decision of the town fathers.

"Oh, you can't do that," protested Mrs. Verento. "We could not live without each other after all these years. Some way must be found to keep us together."

Mr. Still informed her that her son, who has only one arm and earns a little money collecting and selling junk, could take care of her during the winter and that probably in the Spring they could be reunited. But Mrs. Verento was adamant, whereupon the Overseer agreed to have both sent to the poor house. This family was averted upon, but only after considerable arguing.

The couple ate a big supper last night. Mr. Still seeing to it that they received just a little more food than usual and included in it some delicacies. Then they went to bed together for what proved to be the last time. This morning when Mr. Still called for them, he found the woman sleeping and wailing and unable to get up. He tried to get her into bed, but she would not move. All she could do was to point to the bed, where the body of her husband lay.

A doctor was summoned and information revealed that the thought of leaving the long trip to Yaphank had caused a shock which effected his weakening heart.

Now the old woman will remain in her home until to-morrow when her husband is buried, and then she will take up her abode in the poorhouse. Her son may go with her, or he may remain in the little home and attempt to keep body and soul together by collecting his junk.

ATTACKS DECISION AGAINST BOOZE ON FOREIGN SHIPS HERE

Wickersham Argues That Dry Laws Do Not Apply to Vessels in Port.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The decision of Federal Judge Hand at New York, holding that foreign vessels cannot bring intoxicating liquors into the territorial waters of the United States, was attacked in a brief for the foreign lines filed in the Supreme Court to-day by former Attorney General George W. Wickersham.

He declared that although the Prohibition amendment and the Volstead enforcement act apply to the United States and all territory subject to its jurisdiction, they do not operate to constitute regulations of the internal affairs of foreign merchant vessels coming within American waters.

Immemorial usage, the brief asserted, established the right of such vessels to carry beverages as a part of their stores or supplies for the use of passengers and crew, and that something further than any law now on the statute books would be required to prohibit continuance of that custom.

Merchandise possession of liquor on board a ship, lawful in its inception, cannot become unlawful, Mr. Wickersham argued, the moment the ship crosses the three-mile limit into American territorial waters. He declared the presence of these liquors on board, while the ship is in American waters, and on her progress from the three-mile limit to her dock and return, was not transportation within the meaning of the Prohibition amendment or enforcement act.

The brief covered more than a hundred printed pages and presented a review of the laws of foreign countries under which foreign steamships are required to carry intoxicating liquors and wines.

DOCTOR SWEARS TO ALIBI FOR MOHR NIGHT OF MURDER

There was a man in a wig to it. Can I imitate it? No, sah. I'm no dog, but it was like a dog. He was in the next room to mine, and I thought he was trying to break out. I didn't want him to get in my room, so I put one of the beds against the door because I had a pistol wound in my arm and I was sort of one handed. But this guy certainly kept us all awake. He made me walk up and down lots of nights.

To this testimony Joseph Ballman, another convict, added the information that he had seen Powell in the jail yard and "he could hardly stand up."

Joseph L. Swanson, convicted of robbery and now in the Reformatory at Rahway, knew Powell in the Mount Holly Jail. He said that when Powell told him of the arrival of a little baby in his home he said, "How would you like to be home at Christmas, Charlie?" Powell replied to this, he said: "Detective Parker has told me that if I stuck to my story and didn't break down I'd be there on Christmas."

Swanson testified that Powell acted strangely, said he heard music like a carnival band and had "boots" in his neck. The witness said he felt the pulsations but couldn't hear them, as Powell thought he might.

Melvin Knaube, of Reading, Pa., for six years in John Brunen's employ, being Secretary and Treasurer of the show up to August, 1921, was at the Brunen home after the murder. He said Hazel Brunen's attitude toward her father before his death was often very disrespectful.

Asked what he heard her say after the funeral, he replied:

"Now that my father's gone, I can enjoy my meals. Every time I heard his footsteps I'd never know what was going to happen and I'd lose my appetite."

Asked what Hazel Brunen's attitude was toward Charles Powell after the latter's arrest and confession, the witness said she told him she could not understand why they arrested Harry Mohr on the word of a drunken dog head. He said Hazel and her stepmother were more like girl chums than mother and daughter.

Knaub admitted on cross-examination that he would do everything honorable, to help his friend Harry Mohr.

Harry Gentum, one of the managers of Brunen's "Mighty Doris Show," testified that Benny Franklin, not Mohr, was the one who said to him that the man who shot Brunen ought to get a gold medal, of Hazel Brunen he said she once told him: "I am glad my father is dead. Now I can have more freedom. He was too strict with me." He admitted saying to Mrs. Mary Miller last week that it was a better thing John Brunen was dead and that he was a "home wrecker."

The relationship existing between Mrs. Brunen and John Brunen, his habits in the home, and his conduct with which Prosecutor Kelsey today closed his cross-examination of the showman's widow.

John Brunen drank a quart of whiskey the Christmas day a year ago on which he shot his wife, Mrs. Brunen testified. He was cruel to her and to everybody else when he was

SWIMS TO SHORE IN ICY WATERS TO SAVE COMRADES

Carried Line by Which Tug Crew Pulled Rafts to Safety.

SALT LAKE, UTAH, Dec. 19.—The wireless to-day told a tale of the remarkable heroism displayed by Billy Gow, fireman aboard the Reliance, after the tug, carrying thirty-six persons, crashed onto the rocky shores of the Lizard Islands, in Northern Lake Superior, nearly a week ago.

Sunday night, four days after the tug had grounded, Gow volunteered to swim ashore with a rope and enabled his stranded companions to make their way to the island on rafts constructed from ice skiffs belonging to the Dominion Fish Company, which the Reliance was carrying.

Only one of the tug's boats was able to reach the shore. The others had been lost the first day, when attempts had been made to launch them. Advice received to-day indicated that three lives were lost at this time. The fourth to die, an unnamed Finlander, succumbed on the tug while being taken to the Soo for treatment, after he had fallen ill.

From Wednesday until Sunday, the Reliance, hard aground, was buffeted by gales. She struck a quarter of a mile from shore, but by Sunday night, the pounding waves had driven her to within seventy-five yards of shore.

Then Gow volunteered to reach the island. Plunging into the icy water, with a rope tied around his waist, he struck out for land. For a time it seemed he would fail, but he kept steadily on.

Finally he crawled up on the rocky shore. The rope was stretched tight, and the rafters were launched. Clinging to the line, the party pulled themselves ashore.

MILK COMPANY FINED $750; PLANT UNSANITARY

Magistrate Finds Sheffield Farms
"Grossly Negligent."

The Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., was to-day fined $750 by Magistrate Simpson in the Municipal Term Court on three complaints filed by Health Department Inspector Isadore Sobel, who charged that he found unsanitary conditions in the pasteurizing plant of the company at No. 524 West 37th Street.

The first inspection was made on May 19, and at that time, Sobel declared, he found the heater, cooler and milk pipes covered with stale milk. The second inspection, on Aug. 3, revealed that unfixed pipes and "boots" in his neck, and again on Sept. 13 he found the pipes gray and covered with a cheesy substance. Also, he charged he discovered vermin in the milk room.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Leonard told the court that these were the worst conditions ever discovered by the Health Department, whereupon Magistrate Simpson declared that the company was grossly negligent and that there was no excuse for such conditions.

DEPOSITION OF ACTRESS TAKEN IN HIRSCH CASE

Retne Davis Too Ill to Testify at Trial.

A deposition was taken from Miss Retne Davis, motion picture actress, in the Hotel Pennsylvania, yesterday, for presentation at the trial at Mineola to-morrow of Mrs. Hazel Hirsch, of Freeport, charged with assault in the first degree upon her husband, Oscar. It is alleged that Mrs. Hirsch shot her husband during a disagreement near the home of Miss Davis in Freeport.

Miss Davis has been ill for about two weeks with a severe cold, and will be unable to testify.

drunk, she said, and he got drunk very often.

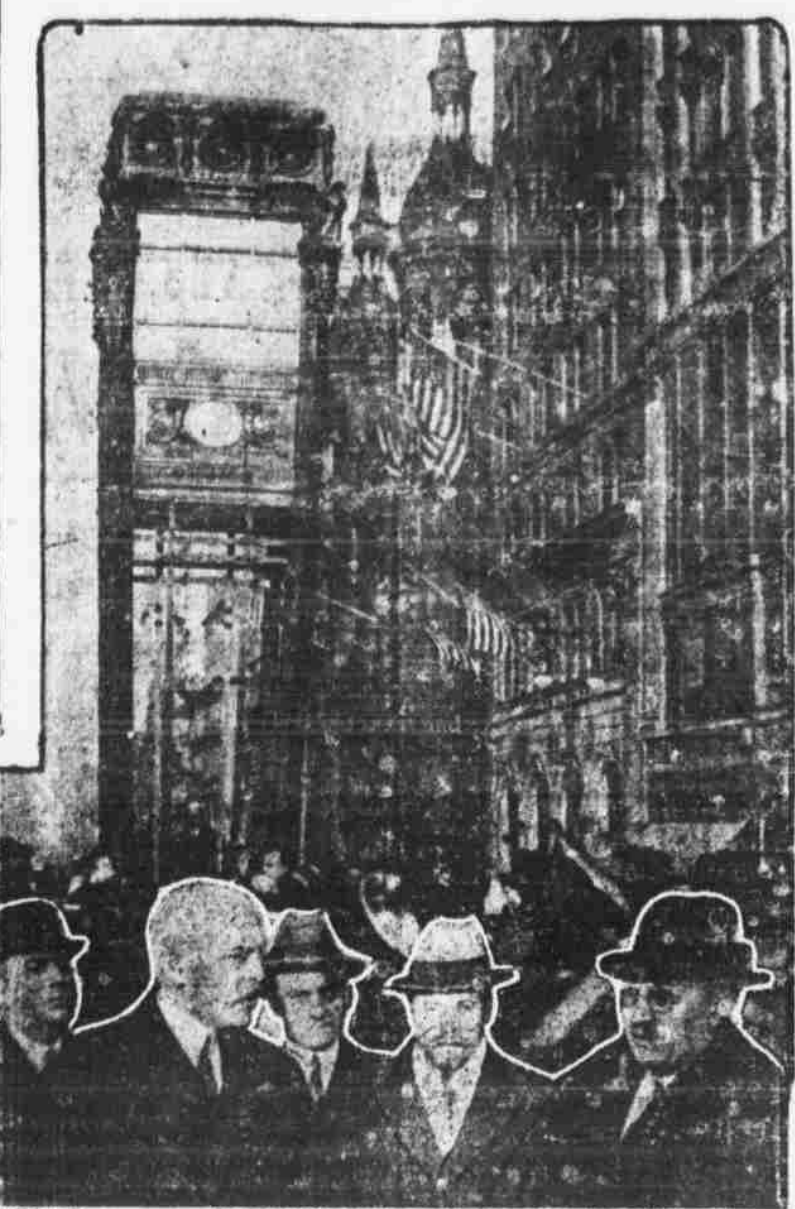

"He had a bad temper, didn't he?" Prosecutor Kelsey asked her.

"Yes, when he was drunk, and he was mean when he was sober," she replied.

The witness denied saying to the policeman, "I hate John Brunen; I live a dog's life; I'm going to get a divorce. I love 'Doc' Ward." Her denials were given in a loud but entirely calm voice.

New Fifth Avenue Traffic Tower Functioning Perfectly in Scheme Devised by Commissioner Harriss

TO MAYOR HYLAN FOR THE USE OF THE CITY.

Mayor Hylan at Luncheon in Honor of Event Again Hopes to See Third Avenue "L" Put in the Scrap Heap.

The new permanent bronze traffic regulation tower at Fifth Avenue and 42d Street, dedicated yesterday, functioned perfectly to-day and proved the foresight of Deputy Police Commissioner Dr. John A. Harriss who, in his handling of the traffic problems on the streets of the city, has never been satisfied to let well enough alone.

When the other towers are completed and the makeshift structures are removed Fifth Avenue will not only be decoratively improved but traffic will be more expeditiously handled.

The dedication ceremonies proved to be an event of great popular interest, attracting a great throng of citizens. Mayor Hylan and other city officials walked to the tower from the Biltmore where the Fifth Avenue Association had given a luncheon. The Police Band and an escort of marines preceded the official party.

Robert Grier Cooke, President of the Fifth Avenue Association, which donated the towers, presided at the dedication. Joseph Friedlander, designer of the towers, formally turned the first of them over to C. Stanley Mitchell, Chairman of the Traffic Tower Committee who turned it over notice to the dealers to whom "peddler coal" is consigned that they will report weekly the receipts and the detailed sales showing the identity of the peddlers and the total of number of bags of 100-pound lots sold and the amount of coal still on hand at the end of the week.

In promulgating the list of forty-nine relief stations, Mr. Leard sent

It was impressed on the dealers that such coal sold to peddlers must go to those peddlers and to their own coal cellars for distribution in 50 pound, 100 pound and 200 pound lots.

No buckwheat or other substitutes are to be sold mixed with the stove, chestnut, range or peat.

The co-operation of the Police Department, Health Department, Tenement House Department and the Bureau of Weights and Measures has been pledged to report any violations of the order affecting "peddler coal" if it is found that the coal does not reach the peddler trade or the cellar dealer.

Circulars printed in English, Yiddish and Italian were sent to all the peddlers and will be handed out with the first bags of peddler coal sold. The circulars state:

"Anthracite coal sold to peddlers is for sale to cellar dealers or from the peddler's yard or wagon in small lots of 200 pounds or less to consumers who for various reasons are obliged to buy in small quantities.

"If it is found that any peddler sells coal in any other way—in other words, to the one, two or three-ten household consumer—the Fuel Administration will order the dealer to sell no more coal to him."

"The plans made provide for an ample supply of stove and chestnut coal for those who are obliged to buy in 100 pound quantities. An accurate and complete record will be kept of the movement of the coal to the dealers and the sale by the dealer to the peddler, or in 100 pounds quantities direct to the consumer. All of the stations established will sell at 70 cents per 100 pounds, regardless of the cost of the coal to them or their retail price."

"The Fuel Administration has undertaken to make sure, as far as can be done, that the coal sold to the peddler reaches those for whom it is intended—in other words, the fifty pound, one hundred pound, or two hundred pound consumers. Just as soon as a sufficient supply of the printed circulars are obtained, notices will be furnished to the Police De-

HYSTERIA SEIZES MISS ELIAS; TRIAL OF BECKER HALTED

Former Sweetheart of 'Pit
Slayer' Gives Damaging Evidence Against Him.

The trial of Abraham Becker in the Bronx County Court for the murder of his wife, Jennie, was resumed to-day, with Mrs. Carrie Rosenzweig, sister of Anna Elias, the woman for whom Becker deserted his wife and who bore him a child, on the stand. Miss Elias was waiting in an ante-room to be called immediately after her sister.

Mrs. Rosenzweig was subjected to a long cross-examination by Alexander Mayper, counsel assigned to the defense. It did not appear to observers that this cross-examination was of much benefit to the defendant.

The case has now reached a stage where all that is necessary is to establish a motive for the murder. The body itself was beyond the identification stage when it was found buried in an old boiler pit in Southern Boulevard but the clothing and wisp of Mrs. Becker's hair were identified in open court yesterday.

The foundation of the motive was established by the testimony of Mrs. Rosenzweig, who said that Becker, although married at the time, became infatuated with her sister more than three years ago. Becker at that time endeavored to marry Miss Elias and went so far as to take her to a rabbi. Mrs. Rosenzweig succeeded in halting this marriage but Miss Elias went to live with Becker nevertheless.

Inasmuch as Reuben Norkin, Becker's self-confessed assistant in burying Mrs. Becker after her husband had knocked her senseless with an iron bar, cannot be used as a witness against the defendant it may be necessary for Judge Gibbs and the jury to visit the place where Mrs. Becker's body was found to check up on the theory of the murder advanced by the prosecution. The District Attorney plans to put Norkin on trial for murder on Jan. 8.

The Elias woman took the stand when Mrs. Rosenzweig was excused at 11:40 o'clock, and if Becker had any hope that his narrative would try to aid him it was soon shattered. She told of meeting him at Coney Island in the summer of 1919. In January, 1920, he tried to marry her. She thought he was single—had no suspicion that he was married.

When Mrs. Rosenzweig succeeded in stopping the narrative, Becker, persuaded Anna Elias to live with him at Cleveland, O., where they lived together under the name of Beck. While in Cleveland, she said, she denied Becker was married, but he denied it.

The witness told in detail of her relations with Becker, explaining that they were continuous from January, 1920, up to the time of Becker's arrest for murder and even after he admitted that he was married and the father of four children. Miss Elias was asked why she continued her relations with a married man.

"He said he would get a divorce," she replied.

When she came to tell how Becker, the day after the murder, visited her and said his wife had run away and deserted her children, the witness became hysterical. Judge Gibbs was compelled to announce a recess of fifteen minutes.

The Elias woman said that after Becker reported his wife missing she refused to live with him until he showed her a telegram and letter purporting to have been sent by Mrs. Becker from Philadelphia. Thereafter she lived with Becker in the Bronx and at Coney Island until he was arrested. Her story was not shaken by cross-examination.

Daniel Neep, office manager of the Empire Fireproof Door Company, by which Becker was employed as a driver, followed Miss Elias. He testified that Becker did not work on April 7. This was offered to contradict Becker's story told to the police at the time of his wife's disappearance that he went to work at 7 o'clock on the morning of April 7 and found that she was missing when he returned home at noon. The prosecution contends that she was killed on the night of April 6.

partment, the Health Department, the Tenement House Department, and the Bureau of Weights and Measures with a request that if they detect instances where coal sold to peddlers, ultimately destined for the hundred pound consumer is sold in one, two, three ten lots to household consumers, no more coal will be sold to that particular peddler."

One of the serious difficulties which has been encountered in the efforts of the Fuel Administration to keep up a supply of stove and chestnut coal for the small consumer has been that through opportunity for profiteering the peddler has sold his load of one, two or three tons to the household consumer in one lot, instead of disposing of the coal in the hundred pound units for which it was intended.

NEW CARNEGIE HEIR IS BEING WELCOMED BY MR. AND MRS. MILLER

MRS. ROSWELL MILLER.

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Miller. The new heir to the fortune of the late Andrew Carnegie arrived Thursday and is named Roswell Miller 2d.

Mrs. Miller is the only daughter of the late steel king. She was married on April 23, 1919, to Ensign Roswell Miller, son of former President Roswell Miller of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad. He was graduated from Princeton last year and is now an instructor at New York University.

The couple now have two children. A daughter was born to them in June, 1920.

FIVE ARE KILLED, MANY INJURED IN AUTO MISHAPS

Magistrate Threatens to Hold Reckless Drivers Without Bail in Future.

Three persons were killed and several others injured in a series of motor mishaps in the past twenty-four hours.

Four persons were injured, probably fatally, in an unusual automobile accident at Broadway and 237th Street, Bronx, early to-day.

The car, a seven-passenger touring, driven by William Kane, twenty, of No. 212 East 113th Street, and with four other persons, was going south on Broadway, when the hat of James O'Connor of No. 507 East 32d Street, one of the party, was carried off by the wind.

The machine was stopped. O'Connor retrieved his hat. Re-entering the car he forgot to close a rear side door. As the machine neared 237th Street the door came in contact with a pillar of the elevated division of the subway. The machine was swerved around.

It struck another pillar and the occupants were thrown to the pavement. O'Connor suffered a fractured skull. Mrs. Mary Lisner of No. 135 West 90th Street received a fractured skull. Her daughter, Jacqueline, seventeen, suffered fractures of both legs and was internally injured. James McCann, twenty-six, of No. 509 East 32d Street, also was internally injured and his skull fractured.

Horace Couzo of No. 75 Van Alst Avenue, Long Island City, died at 19 o'clock to-day in St. John's Hospital of injuries incurred when his automobile hit a service car of the White Motor Company in Thompson Avenue at a little after midnight. The driver of the White Motor Company's car, William J. Ryan of No. 307 West 170th Street, Manhattan, was held liable by the police.

Alfred Leon, fifty-eight years old, of No. 239 West 23d Street, died at St. Vincent's Hospital from injuries he received when struck by an automobile at Eighth Avenue and 21st Street, Friday. The auto was operated by Samuel Levine of No. 13 Essex Street.

Louis Zeinstein, forty, No. 65 Lewis Street, was knocked down by an automobile at Lafayette and Great Jones Streets shortly before 6 o'clock last evening. He died at St. Vincent's Hospital early to-day. The automobile was owned and operated by Sidney Gruen, No. 575 Park Avenue, who

POLICEMAN, PAL OF CHILDREN; IS FELLED BY TROLLEY

But He Recovers in Time to Leave Hospital for Post
Before School Closed.

Children of Public School No. 59 gasped with terror a little after noon to-day when they saw their favorite traffic policeman, Michael J. Murray, knocked down by a surface car and thrown into the path of an automobile. It happened at the school crossing at 57th Street and Third Avenue, where Murray's watchfulness in other days had saved many of these children from death or maiming.

Luckily the car that struck him, a southbound Third Avenue car in which a motorist named Charles Miller, was not going fast. But it threw him to the northbound track and a motorist there had to grind his brakes to stop in time.

A little girl was first to reach Murray. She bent over him, her lips trembling, and begged him to get up "and smile."

"Frettle soon, kid," the cop replied. Some men helped him into an ambulance and took him to Receptor Hospital, where it was found that his injuries were slight. He was back on the job before the close of the afternoon school session.

ROBBERS FORCE VICTIM TO WAIT ON CUSTOMER

Two young men went into the United States Store at No. 271 Fourth Avenue, between 23d and 23 1/2 Streets, last night, drew pistols and ordered the clerk into the back room. As he started to go, a customer came in, leaned over the counter and asked for two cigars. The bandits hid their guns next to the counter, and one of them told the clerk to "go ahead and give the customer what he wants." The clerk handed him the cigars, the man laid his money on the counter, lit one of the cigars and went out without noticing anything.

The bandits then forced the clerk into the back room and while one of them stood guard the other took $35 from the cash register. He also tried to open the safe, but would not be called to his companion and they left together.

was not held. The accident, the police say, was unavoidable.

Losing control as he threw the gear into reverse, Jack Schwartz, twenty-one, of No. 631 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, caused his father's motor truck to back across the curbing in front of No. 1157 61st Street, Brooklyn, at the moment twelve-year-old Charles Sengo of No. 1255 61st Street, Brooklyn, was passing last evening.

Before Schwartz could stop the truck the heavy vehicle plowed the boy to the wall of the building,
